

Thursday, 6 November 2014

New Editors in Chief for EJM

Press release from FENS

The Federation of European Neuroscience Societies (FENS) hereby announces the appointment of Professor Paul Bolam (University of Oxford) and Professor John Foxe (Albert Einstein College of Medicine, New York) as new Editors-in-Chief of the European Journal of Neuroscience, the official Society journal of FENS. The transition date will be January 1st 2015 and will include the re-location of the editorial office from Zurich to Oxford.

FENS President Professor Monica Di Luca welcomes the new team of EJM editors in chief:

“Conditions for scientific publishing are constantly evolving. The continued thriving and strengthening of EJM as a first-choice neuroscience journal is vital for FENS and is, in my view, intimately linked to the vision and engagement of the journal’s scientific leadership. Representing complementary expertise and approaches, I have full confidence that Paul Bolam and John Foxe are ideally qualified to face these challenges and to maintain and strengthen the status of EJM as a high-ranking, broad neuroscience journal for all our colleagues in Europe and beyond”.

Professor Jean-Marc Fritschy (University of Zurich) and Professor Martin Sarter (University of Michigan) carried out the senior editorial duties for EJM since July 2008. FENS wishes to acknowledge their fantastic contributions to the continued development of EJM and their management of the EJM editorial board which comprises world experts from across all fields of neuroscience. Under their leadership, and in collaboration with Wiley, the EJM editorial board has managed the continuing process of adapting and improving the editorial routines and the quality of the journal content to reflect the needs of today’s neuroscientists.

FENS recognises the absolutely critical contributions to EJM of previous and present Scientific Review Associates and Associate Editors. Over the coming months, the new Editors in Chief will focus on ensuring a smooth transition of the editorial responsibilities for EJM. John and Paul will be attending the Society for Neuroscience Meeting in Washington D.C. and will be at the Wiley stand on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday (16-18th Nov) between the hours of 1 pm and 2 pm. Please feel free to drop by to discuss future plans and initiatives for EJM.

FENS invites individual scientists and organisations in the fields of neuroscience to help welcome Professor Bolam and Professor Foxe as new Editors in Chief.

Monica Di Luca
FENS President